Unveiling transformative pedagogy: Integrating art-based modalities and reflexive writing in nursing education

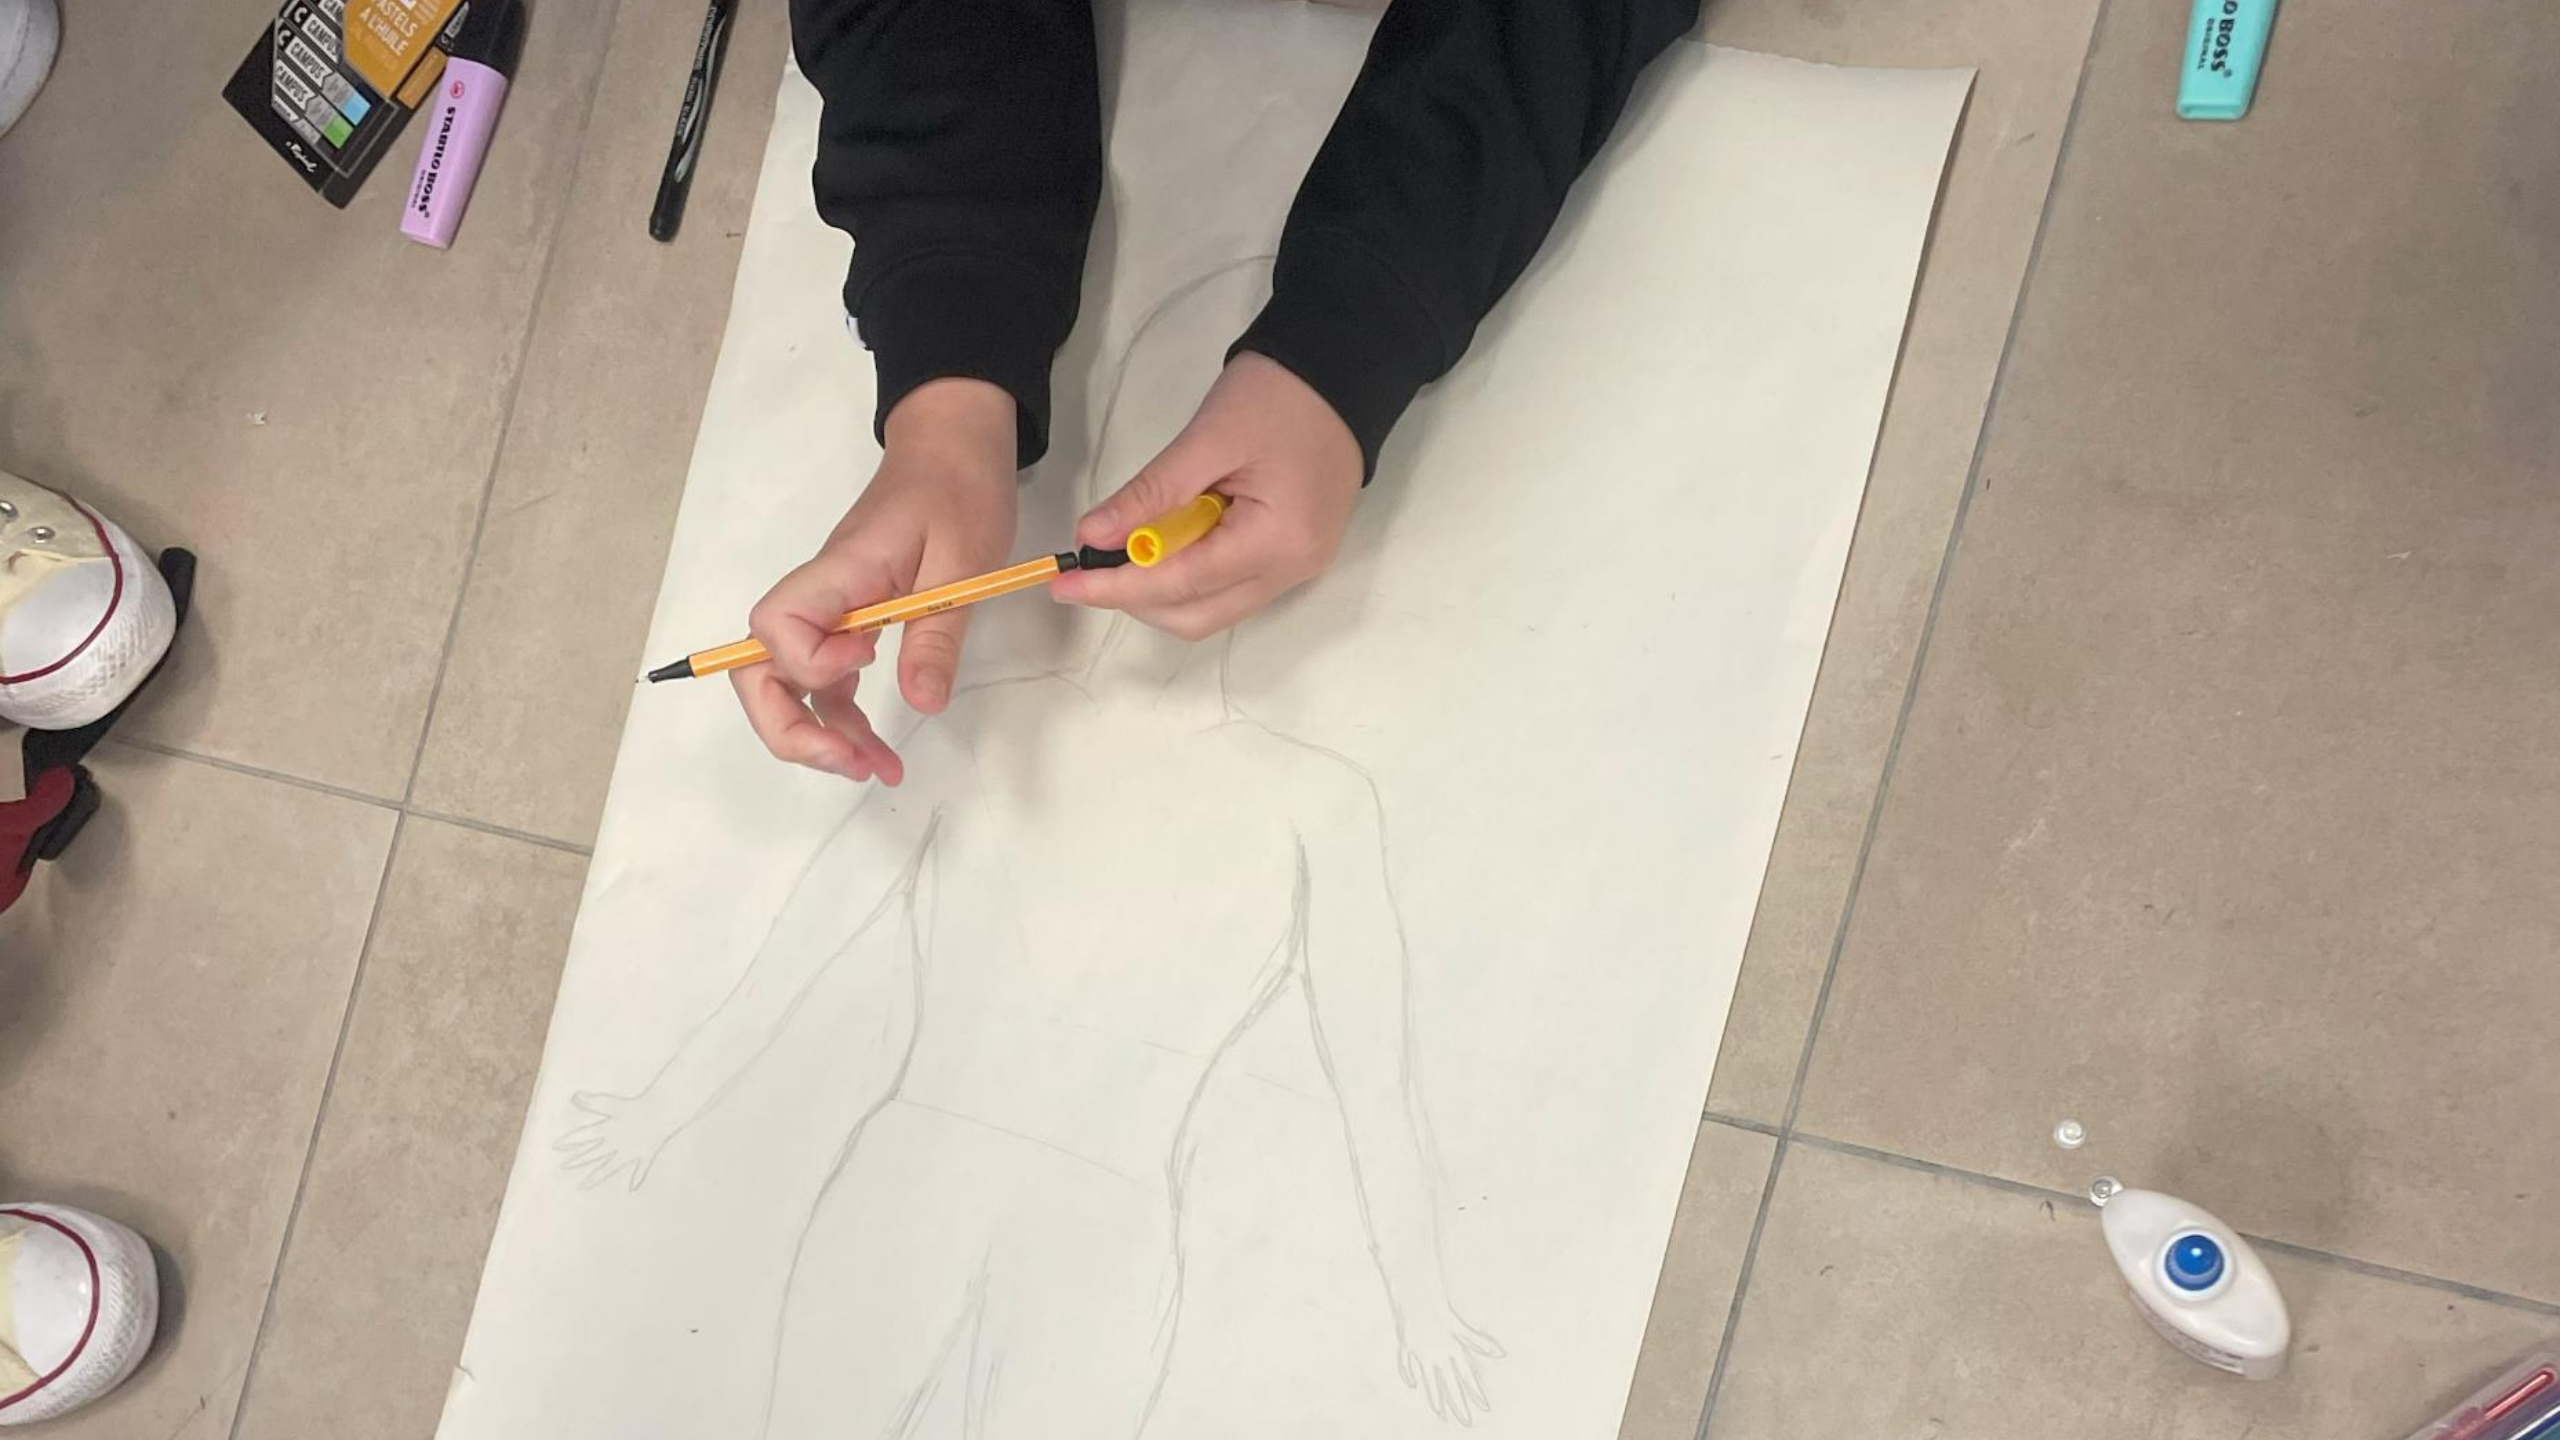

Dr Michelle Camilleri & Dr Sharon Martinelli

University of Malta

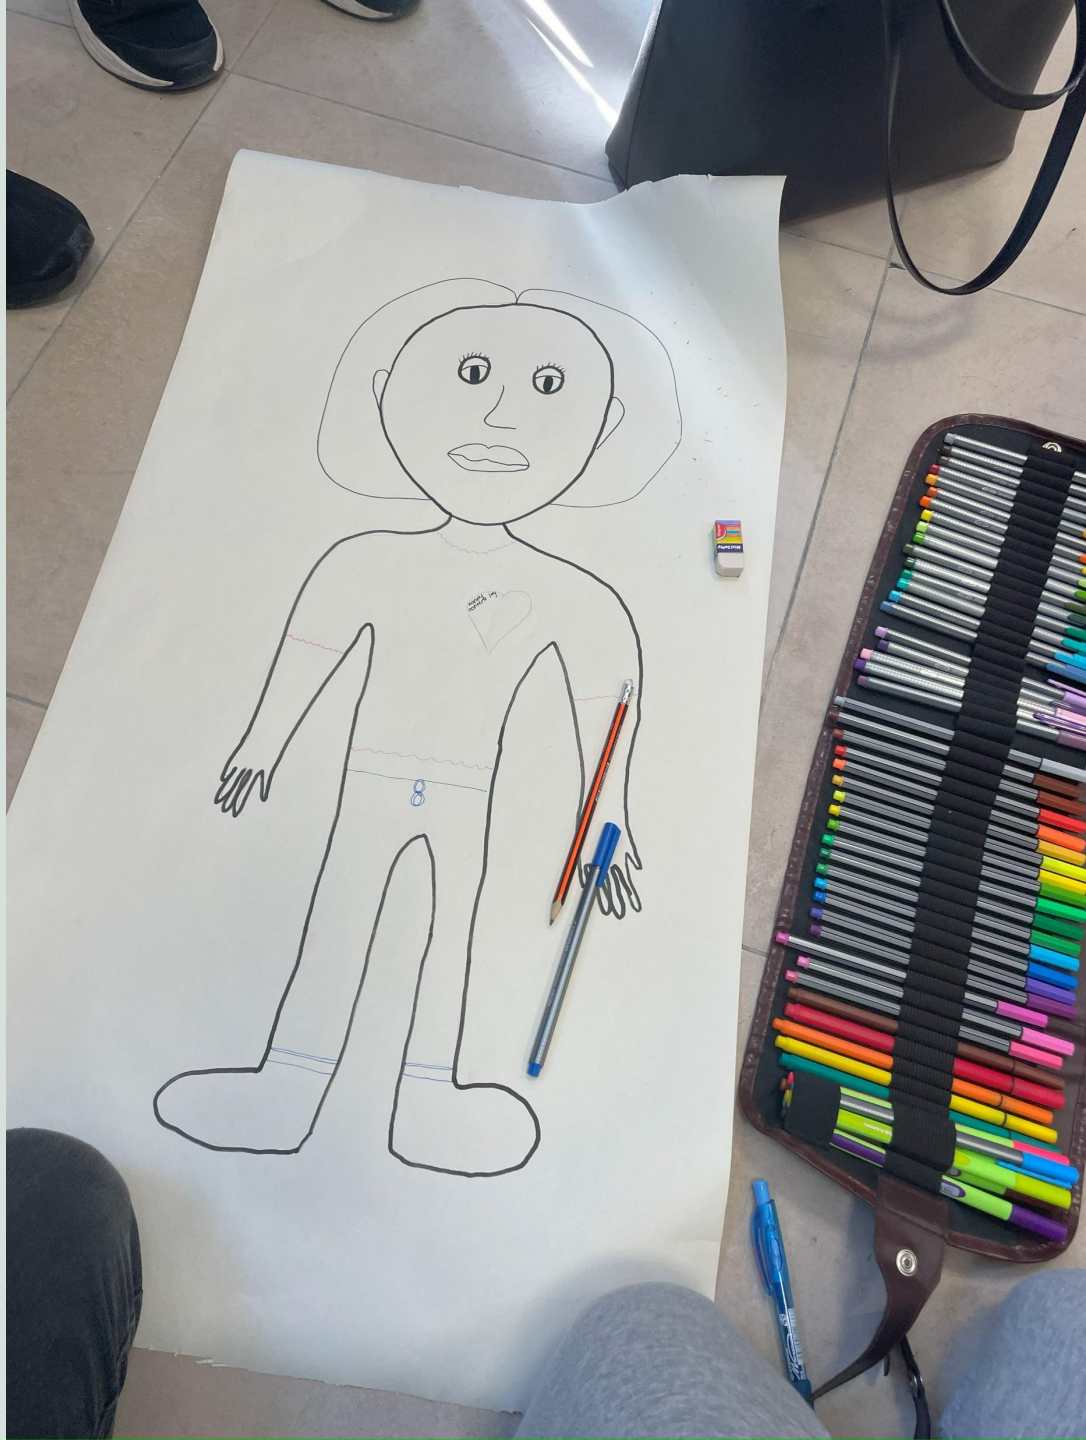

- A different day!
- Refreshing!
- Interesting!
- Great ice breakers
- Pushed me to have a better outlook on things

I liked how we were forced out of our comfort zones to learn more about each other.

The activities were helpful and fun. I loved the drawing one.

I got to know my classmates more.

I enjoyed it very much as it was very interactive which makes it much more interesting & easier to understand than other lectures in this course.

THANK YOU! 😊

Our intentions

1. Getting them to actively engage
2. Get them to reflect on their own processes Raise their self-awareness
3. Provoking critical thinking
4. Make the students uncomfortable
5. Facilitating/guiding the learning and we shared our stories, our vulnerabilities

- This workshop was very good - amazing - helpful
- healing on a personal level and at same time made new friends ♡
- Thank you !!
- I wish we did this x2 a year

- Enjoyed the interactivity as I was alert and didn't zone out.

- 'speed dating' and talking about other people in front of people was uncomfortable however it was eye opening on communication.

thank you for this experience
it really forced me to think deeply about myself
and I managed to socialize with my classmates whereas
I usually am too anxious.

The pedagogical challenges ...

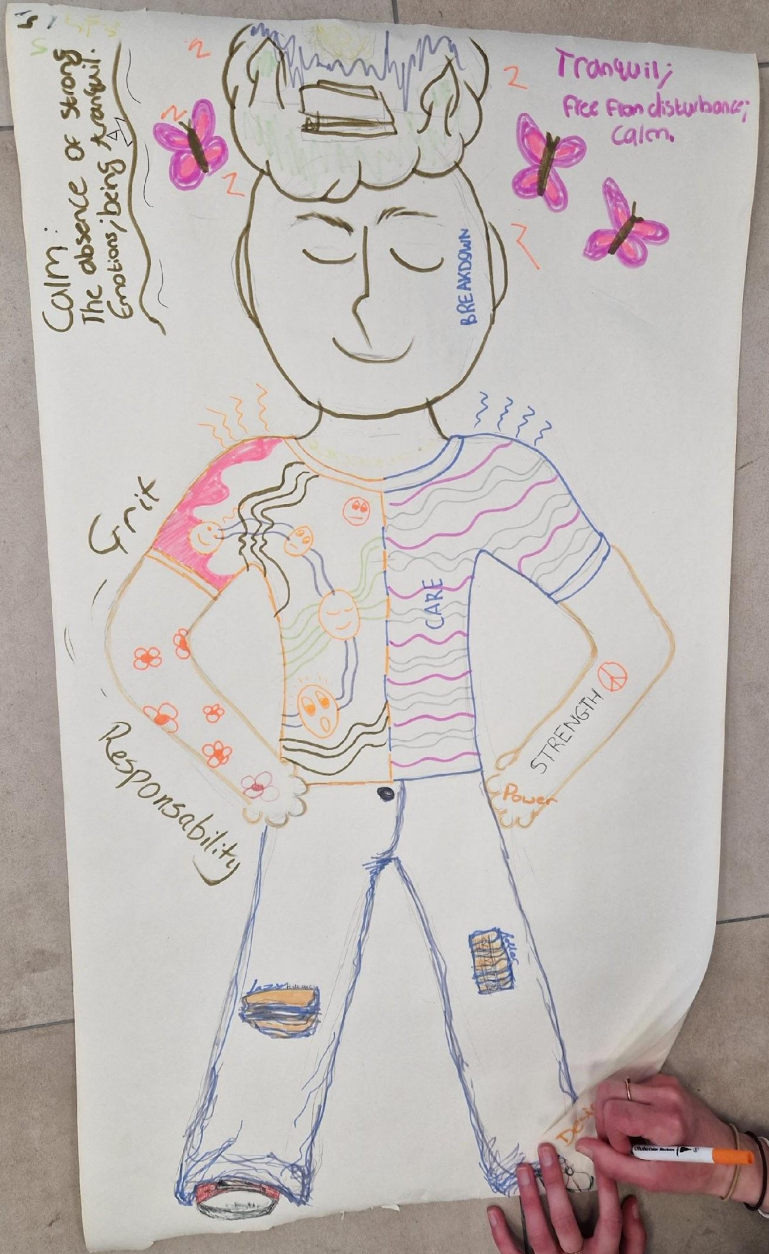

1. Size of the class (logistics)
2. Some students did not engage in the exercises properly
3. Impact of processes drawing out past known or unknown traumas
4. Time and timing
5. The unknown for us

The activities were fun

& were a great way
of breaking the ice &

making things less

awkward with classmates

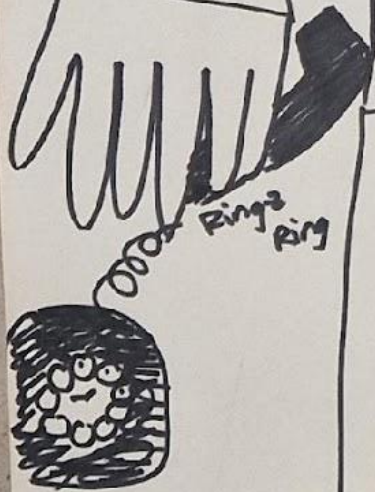

- 1) Love this initiative
- 2) It is really awakening
- 3) Now we can communicate with each other properly.

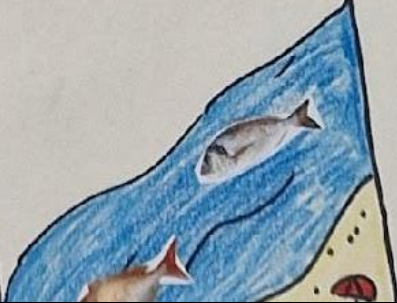

Clap along if you feel like
what you wanna do 😊

S.O.S

TEAM WORK

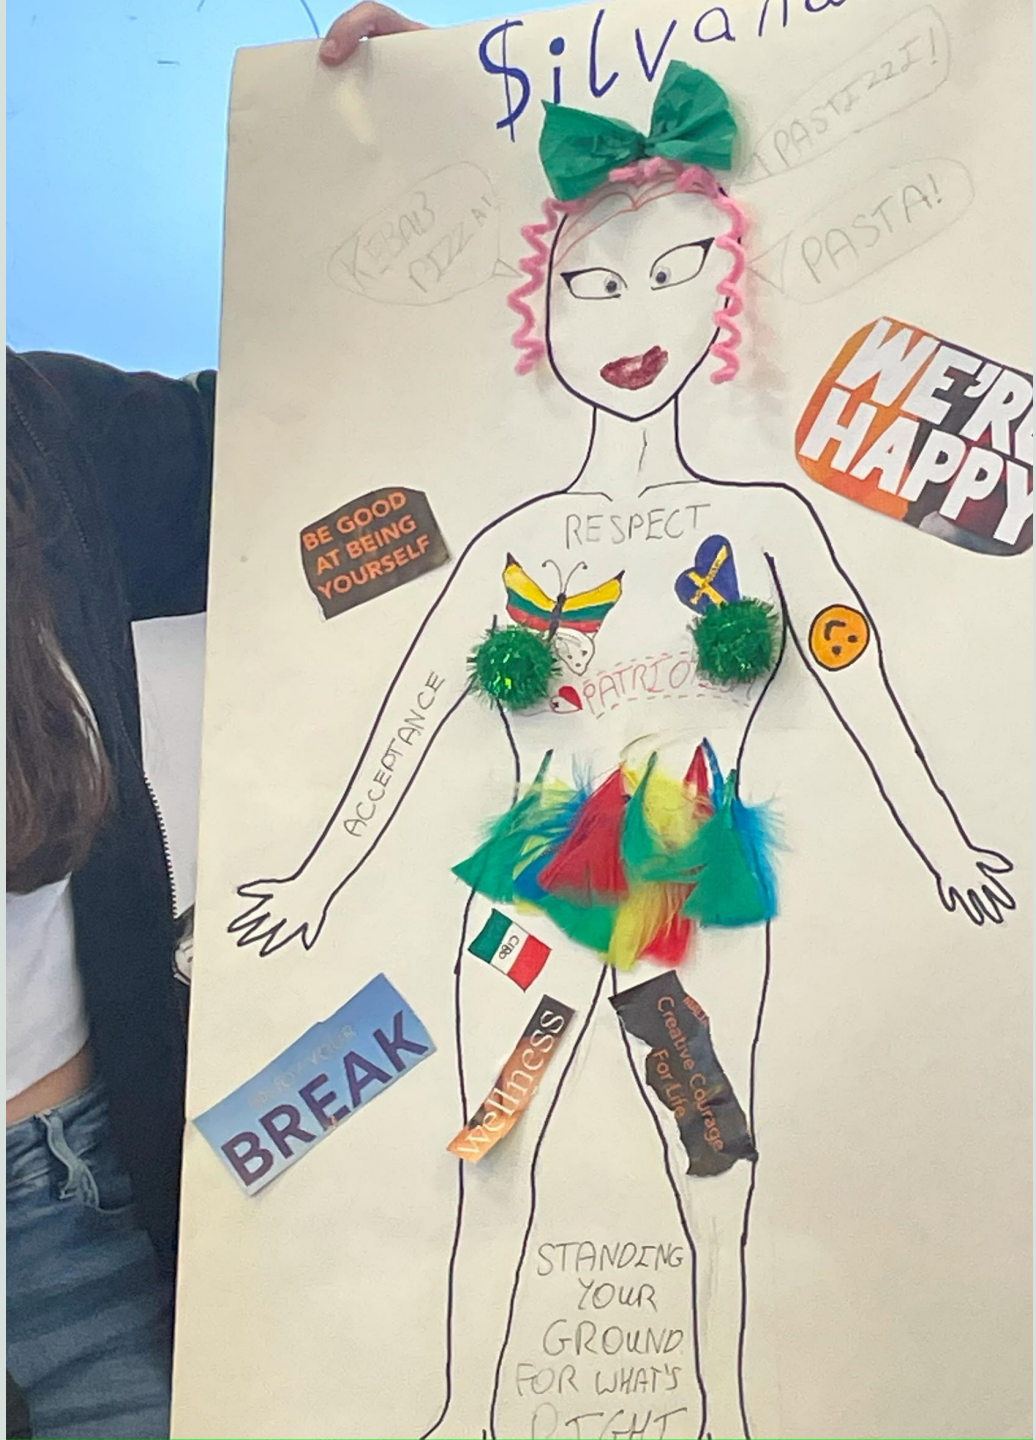

Happy

What have we learnt as educators from this approach?

1. To trust the process
2. We learnt a lot about ourselves as well as about our students
3. It's a powerful and meaningful way of learning
4. The topic (PPD) but also the method of teaching and learning needed to be expanded through the whole curriculum
5. It is more than ok to disrupt ...
6. We need to do more research

I LEARNED THAT I MIGHT BE A BETTER AT COMMUNICATING THAN I THOUGHT I WAS WHICH IS GOOD

I enjoyed the groupworks.

They were interactive and I did not get bored.

Good opportunity to listen to different perspectives. 😊

THE MODALITY OF THE WORKSHOP WAS REALLY INTERESTING AND FUN TO ENGAGE INTO

Calm

This workshop should have come earlier.

It was interesting and an eye opener.

Self realization & proper communication especially in this profession is key.

Thank you Michelle & Sharon.
